ABOUT PHOTOSENSITIVE SEIZURES

A very small percentage of people may experience a seizure when exposed to certain visual images, including flashing lights or patterns that may appear in video games. Even people who have no history of seizures or epilepsy may have an undiagnosed condition that can cause these "photosensitive epileptic seizures" while watching video games.

These seizures may have a variety of symptoms including: Lightheadedness, altered vision, eye or face twitching, jerking or shaking of arms or legs, disorientation, confusion, or momentary loss of awareness. Seizures may also cause loss of consciousness or convulsions that can lead to injury from falling down or striking nearby objects.

Immediately stop playing and consult a doctor if you experience any of these symptoms. Parents should watch for or ask their children about the above symptoms—children and teenagers are more likely than adults to experience these seizures.

The risk of photosensitive epileptic seizures may be reduced by:

- sitting farther from the television screen,
- using a smaller television screen,
- playing in a well-lit room, and
- not playing when you are drowsy or fatigued.

If you or any of your relatives have a history of seizures or epilepsy, consult a doctor before playing.

AVOID DAMAGE TO YOUR TELEVISION

Do not use with certain televisions. Some televisions, especially front-or rear-projection types, can be damaged if any video games, including Xbox games, are played on them. Static images presented during the normal course of game play may "burn in" to the screen, causing a permanent shadow of the static image to appear at all times, even when video games are not being played. Similar damage may occur from static images created when placing a video game on hold or pause. Consult your television owner's manual to determine if video games can be safely played on your set. If you are unable to find this information in the owner's manual, contact your television dealer or the manufacturer to determine if video games can be played on your set.

OTHER IMPORTANT HEALTH AND SAFETY INFORMATION

The Xbox video game system documentation contains important safety and health information that you should read and understand before using this software.

Unauthorized copying, reverse engineering, transmission, public performance, rental, pay for play, or circumvention of copy protection is strictly prohibited.

Our Story is not one of providence... not one of divinity or evolution from the primordial slime. Those stories we leave to humans and their unrelenting thirst for pride. For us, our kind was not so much born, as we were created... wrought through the power of the Moonstone by the human wizard Fraziel; at once granted life, granted form and made whole. Conjured to serve as laborers for his most momentous achievement: a 'Great Machine' that the master swore would grant us power beyond our wildest dreams.

As five our race began, blessed by the power of creation: five children of the moons that formed us: five champions to guide us on. Born with the ability to become one with the moonlight, where they led... we knew we would always follow... what they commanded... we would give our lives to achieve.

Grommel was first-born, set to work the cavernous mines. Formed unto the power of the white moon Froxx, he and his Stonecrusher clan rended the very earth in their endless search for stone and precious metals.

Grax the fervent was second, born under the watchful eye of the red moon Heelinx. Sharp-eyed and industrious, he and his Hellfire clan harvested the dark forests of Ogriss.

taking to the depth of the woodlands of the east, and making them their own.

Faine the learned came soon after. Formed by the blue moon Trist, he and his Stormbringer clan conducted strange magical experiments on the slopes of the southern mountains; chasing the possibilities of the strange force that they called electricity.

From the green moon Phouat came Syst the reaper. Back bent to the soil, he and his Plague-sitter clan gathered rare plants and herbs from the slime of the western marshes. At one with nature, they mastered the art of toxicology, using their knowledge of volatile extracts to fuel the Great Machine.

The last was brooding Naxus, the darkest of the five. Born in the shadow of the purple moon Farthis, he and his Nighthorde clan were the scavengers of our kind, ravaging the cursed soil of the ancient battlefields in search of lost wisdom and bone.

It was a good life for our kind... a simple time of modest needs and clear purpose.

But as they say in the Master’s tongue, nothing can last forever...
Stonecrusher
Born of the white moon Froxx, the Stonecrusher clan is the most straightforward and durable of all the goblin clans, attacking their grueling work in the northern volcanic mines with a devastating sense of tenacity and vigor.

Grommel
Clan chief of the Stonecrusher clan, he and his kind bulldoze through the rubble of the industrial mines in search of precious metals.

Stone Ogre
Long ago, the Stone Ogres lost the war for the mines to their Stonecrusher neighbors. Now subdued, they use their colossal strength in service of their goblin masters.

Nighthorde
A product of the purple moon Farthis, these ruthless scavengers are the darkest of all the goblins. Making their home in the cursed lands of a long-forgotten battleground, they rob the crypts of the ancient fallen, using whatever they find to benefit their clan.

Naxus
The Master of the Nighthorde clan takes a hands-on approach to his rule. Consequently, there is nothing that Naxus enjoys more than while away the hours beside his kinsmen knee-deep in corpses.
